KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen1 von 1 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Ein phantastischer Western - RITA ich stimme allen zuVon Ein KundeFr beide Helden - die Tochter eines Bankmagnaten die berühmte Panoramamalerein Laura Hamilton und der Revolverheld Sam Duncan - wirft das Verschwinden eines Griff Judah die Weichen ihres Lebens auf ein und das selbe Gleis und sie - so konträr sie auch auf den ersten Blick sind sind fasziniert von ihren Gemeinsamkeiten. Selten dass die Charaktere so gut ausgemalt sind, man fröhlich durch das Beschreiben der Landschaft und der Handlung richtig in ein Buch eintaucht und man die Pferde um einen schnauben hört, das Pfeifen der Dampflock durch die Glieder jagt und man mit den Helden mitlebt. Ich habe diese Autorin nachdem sie den Rita für dieses Buch bekommen hat ausprobiert und bestelle mir nun die Backlist voll Freude - denn in Susan Kay Law habe ich sicher eine Gold - bzw eine Silbermine (passender zur Handlung im Buch) gefunden.

Kurzbeschreibung Sam Duncan was too young when he marched off to war and was brutally imprisoned. He's witnessed and experienced a lifetime of cruelty and he's lost too much to care about anything ever again. While he was captured, his entire family died, leaving him with the only person he cares about - his cellmate, Griff. As a result, his steely nerves have made Sam one of the most famous and feared hired guns in the west. Then Griff disappears inside the gates of Hamilton's fabulously profitable Silver Spur ranch. Sam figures that posing as a bodyguard of the Baron of Banking's daughter, who's come to visit, will be the simplest solution to finding his way in. Little did he expect that fighting a war would do so little to prepare him for an encounter with the very adventurous and alluring Laura.

ber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende A former science geek, Susan Kay Law turned to romance writing as a career because it was the perfect excuse to avoid housework and continue spending all her time doing what she really loved: reading and daydreaming. Also because she was really bad at sitting in a swamp at 5 A.M. in forty-degree weather and tracking bird behavior. Winner of the Romance Writers of America's Golden Heart Award and a Waldenbooks Bestseller award, twice nominated for a RITA Award, she confesses that the biggest surprise of her career was when this small town Midwestern preacher's kid was named to New Woman magazine's list of "the steamiest writers of women's fiction." Her greatest joy, however, is spending her days thoroughly outnumbered by four of the best males on the planet -- her husband and three sons. She currently lives in Minnesota, and plans to be a ski bum in her next life.
