Kas (Region Antalya-Trkei) erworben und bin sehr froh dabei die Autorin etwas kennengelernt zu haben, sowie einiges ber die Hintergrnde zur Entstehung des Buches und ber ihre eigene Lebensweise. Das Buch ist auf Englisch, aber mit ein bisschen Wrterbuch bzw Onlinesuche war es kein Problem fr mich. Das Buch ist in einem wunderbaren Stil geschrieben. Verwoben die Geschichte von der 38-jhrigen Aye, die als Ungebte mit viel zu viel Gepck den Lykischen Wanderweg beschreitet und von der Geschichte des persischen Generals Harpagos, der den gleichen Weg 2.500 Jahre frher zurcklegte. Fr mich auch deshalb interessant da ich genau diese Gegend als meinen Lebensmittelpunkt erwahlt habe. Empfehlenswert fr alle Menschen die offen sind fr Neues, Altes hinter sich lassen wollen, Kultur interessiert sind und der Natur verbunden. Lesen!!! Und dann vorbeikommen und nachwandern ;-)

Kurzbeschreibung Joint winner of the One Big Book Launch, London 2014. "If you've ever been to Turkey or ever want to go, this book is a must-read." Melissa Maples, Antalya Insider. "Atulya K Bingham has breathed new life into one of Turkey's most beautiful surviving outposts of accessible mountain wilderness." Hugh Pope, Today's Zaman. Aye, a 38-year-old mother from Istanbul, decides to tackle the Lycian Way in southern Turkey. She has never camped alone before. As she strikes out into Lycias ancient forests, she is on a quest to leave behind the past and find her own truth. But the Lycian Way is steeped in memories. Unknown to Aye, as she clammers over the precipices of the Mediterranean coast and through its lost cities, she is walking in someone else's footsteps. 2500 years earlier, when Lycia was an independent state and worshipped the Goddess Leto, the Persian general Harpagos was stomping along the very same road in a bid to take over the ancient world. Based on the true story of Aye Metin and the lost civilisation of ancient Lycia. Kurzbeschreibung Joint winner of the One Big Book Launch, London 2014.
