A guilty pleasure that reads like a moving picture show. Great detail and realistic dialog allows the reader to cozy up with it right away. I can tell it was written with great passion and conviction.Miss MacFarlane writes great romance stories that take place in her hometown, Alaska. I love an adventure far away from home. Like I am experiencing the area on my own. She allows you to be a part of the scenery and she takes you there with her down home writing style. She has a way of making you feel like you are not a tourist but a local. She uses her slang that seems natural and genuine. And beside all that, I adore her spunk. She puts that energy into all her stories. Her characters come out all feisty which I just love and the slang adds to the charm.Quote ~Somehow, he had the feeling their little talk hadn't scratched the surface of what was bothering the woman. Della acted almost like a dog that had been on a chain too long. It wanted free, wanted to experience life, and was tugging hard on what was holding it down.
