A Spooky Night, a Haunted Castle, A Mystery, and Fun for Cats and Mice Von Donald Mitchell This is the best of the first three books in the Geronimo Stilton series. I think you'll have a great time with this book. Cat and Mouse in a Haunted House is definitely for intrepid youngsters, such as those who like to visit haunted houses where ghosts and goblins jump out at them on Halloween. If a youngster gets nervous when things go bump in the night, the beginning of this book might get in the way of good sleeping that night. It was a dark night in October when Geronimo Stilton, the retiring editor of The Rodent's Gazette, was driving through the Dark Forest to visit his aunt Sweetfur who was vacationing in Sweet Paw Hills. The fog rolled in and the paved road ran out. Unexpectedly, Geronimo saw a sign pointing to Cannycat Castle, a place that he couldn't find on his map. Upon arriving at the castle, a lightning bolt shot down from the sky and the rain began to pour. He approached the castle and a light mysterious came on and went off in a tall tower. Geronimo finds it all a little overwhelming. Once inside, things get a lot spookier in a hurry! In the midst of his terror, Geronimo gets a call from his sister, Thea. She immediately wants to see what's going on and tells him to wait for her. When Thea arrives, she brings jokester cousin Trap with her and their nephew, Benjamin. Trap keeps making fun of Geronimo who is embarrassed that everything spooky he has seen isn't there any more. What happened? Benjamin decides to be a detective and looks for clues. It's an interesting mystery with a rewarding solution that any child will enjoy. Those who feel brave will feel encouraged to know that many spooky things are caused on purpose, not supernaturally by ghosts and goblins. As with the other books in the series, the text is enlivened by printing words in bright colors and stimulating shapes that reflect their meaning and the emotions that they suggest. The illustrations are wonderful for bringing the atmosphere to just the right pitch. I think it would be the most fun to read this in a dark room with only a small candle or some moonlight for illumination. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. good gift Von dutta The book is great- excellent gift for a kid of 7-10 years. the story is nice, printing is great. recommended gift for new learners
