In Get Bunny Love, a Zebra Debut Romance by Kathleen Long, it's more like run away train crashing rather than a simple attraction. And Long's hero and heroine cannot be more opposite. Get Bunny Love is not 'bunny love' but the name of the heroine (I kept thinking of the old telly show Get Christie Love!). Beatrice Love goes by the nickname of Bunny, and it tends to suit her better. She is a graphics designer, working out of her home, but failing to make ends meet. So she answers the calls for an interview for an event planner for McNulty Events, owned by one Nate McNulty. A family owned business, Nate is doing his best to prove himself, and he needs one special event to show his family he is here to stay. He is a stuffy, control freak and that is reflected in the dismal offices Bunny faces. Bunny is a New Age sort of lass, a bit of a free spirit, not what the natty Nate thinks is good for his firm, but he is desperate for an event planner. Quickly, Bunny is arranging just not the big event - a dog show - but re-arranging Nate's office, his staff and even him. Bunny would like to do more than re-arrange Nate, only he is already engaged to a woman his family deems the 'proper type' for his wife. Nate must contend with finding himself and thwarting someone who is determined to ruin the dog show and Nate's chances of keeping control of the family business. At times he is really a bit of a pain, but we know our heroine would soon have him sorted out. Kathleen Long gives you an engaging premise, charming characters and one fun read. Long is a fresh voice coming from Zebra's debut line, and I am delighted with yet another of their talented finds and look forward to more her. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. SuperVon MinelliDas Buch hat mir auerordentlich gut gefallen. Ich fand die Protagonisten extrem lustig. Auch super fand ich, dass Bunny ein sehr starker Charakter war. Sie hat sich nie von Nate unterkriegen lassen und das machte das ganze noch ansantere. Diese ganze Eltern-Geschichte im Hintergrund fand ich etwas anstrengend und ich htte mir das Ende und den Epilog etwas ausfhrlicher gewnscht. Ansonsten gibt es definitiv eine Leseempfehlung von mir.

Kurzbeschreibung Yin... Beatrice Love has a problem. When her apartment building turns condo, shes forced to land a real job to secure financing and fast. Accustomed to freelancing as a graphic designer, she has a propensity for creative distraction. From fuzzy bunny slippers to feng shui, she believes in surrounding herself with whatever it takes to increase positive energy flow. Yang... Nate McNulty craves order. When his Aunt Martha, owner of McNulty Events, announces shes selling, hell do whatever it takes to save the family firm. Her first demand is to successfully produce the prestigious Worthington Cup, a regional kennel club show. One event coordinator short, Nate hires Bunny, and the two agree to a mentor/apprentice relationship. Zing... GET BUNNY LOVE is a story of opposites attract. For Bunny, the only thing grayer than the walls of McNulty Events is Nates stifled personality. To Nate, Bunny is a distractingly mop-topped creative menace. Will she be able to see past his lackluster exterior to the sizzling man inside? Will he be able to admit her creative chaos has brought him back to life? FROM THE AUTHOR: I'm thrilled to present the digital release of one of my early titles. Originally published in 2005, GET BUNNY LOVE was my first published book. I affectionately refer to this book as fluff with heart, a laugh-out-loud escape full of heartwarming, quirky characters. I created a hero and heroine who couldnt be more opposite...or more perfect for each other. If youre looking for a few hours of escapism and laughter, I hope youll take a chance on Bunny and Nate. Happy reading! Kurzbeschreibung Yin... Beatrice Love has a problem. When her apartment building turns condo, shes forced to land a real job to secure financing and fast.
